Says CIA Ghosted Her

Moscow, Sept. 3 (UPI)—The authoritative Soviet magazine International Life questioned today

whether Svetlana Alliluyeva, daughter of the late dictator Stalin, really wrote her memoirs. The publication, published with the approval of the Soviet Foreign Ministry, suggested that the autobiography was ghosted by the Svetlana U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. Svetlana, who defected earlier this year, said she wrote the book, "Twenty Letters to a Friend," in 1963 and had it smuggled out to India. The book is scheduled to appear soon in many countries, including America. The ghost-writing charge was made by writer Fedor Latov in a long article attacking the CIA and its activities.
